

cipher

a variable font deciphered fragments suggest a civilization fluent in geometry

0 1 2 3 4 5 6 7 8 9

designed for surfaces that dont exist yet . cipher is the typeface you would find etched into the bulkheads of a 2150 space station – modular, precise, built to be read at speed in low light with no margin for error . and yet somehow it also looks like it was already there, carved into something ancient long before anyone thought to call it a font